the team

Michael Cooper: Managing partner, Data Flow Design. Michael was the chief design architect for the TVA online survey. He has an extensive background in the design, development and implementation of complex databases both for in-house and Internet applications. Michael also served as a TVA expert resource in the AMPC competition for companies involved in software design and, particularly, game design.

Joel Grushkin: Founding shareholder of DHR International, the nation's fifth largest executive recruiting firm, and chairman of CSSI, an "engineered cost segregation studies" firm for the commercial real estate industry. Grushkin was chosen as one of our experts because he created and chaired the equity ventures practice of DHR where he was responsible for building management teams and taking equity stakes in numerous early stage companies. His industry experience includes: software, telco, e-commerce, Internet-gaming, medical device, health-care, financial services and real estate organization. She is well re.
